Is he Brisbane's best neighbour?

Thoughtfulness is his specialty

By ANNA HILTON

EVERYBODY loves good neighbours, but Russell Wuth could be one of the westside's best.

The Chapel Hill retiree is an early nominee in the Westside News search for the best neighbour.

We are hearing stories of neighbours going above and beyond to help improve the lives of those around them.

Alison Clark quickly became friends with Mr Wuth when she moved next door 10 years ago.

"I have no family living in Queensland, but Russell filled that void for me and – although he already has his own children, grandchildren and circle of friends – he always finds time to care for and do so many things for me," she said. "We catch up all the time, whether it is over the back fence, on one of our occasional weekend drinks and nibbles or by texting, which he is a wizard at."

Mr Wuth's list of good deeds would fill a book but he is especially appreciated for his thoughtfulness, whether it's a punnet of strawberries that magically appears in her fridge or the way he always makes sure her two dogs are safe if it looks like a storm is brewing.
